FINAL CONFLICT

FC is produced every three months to offer people a change from the bland nonsense put out by the New World Order.

We publish serious and humourous material - so if you can't think for yourself, or take a joke: go and read 'Reaction Monthly'.

FC is an independent magazine, though editorially it supports the Third Position. Material printed doesn't necessarily reflect the view of FC or the TP. We're just a magazine trying to inform Nationalist bods.

© FC, Winter 98 is a 'ZogBuster' production.

Distributors Wanted: If you would like to distribute FC in the UK, or around the world, drop us a line for our bulk rates. We'd especially like more 'official' distributors in countries not covered at present.

FC SUPPORTERS

These give a minimum of £2 a month to help FC's various initiatives. It is open to anyone who supports the broad aims of FC. In return they get exclusive freebies, and the chance to not dine with Ranting Ron once a year at a special FC dinner party. Send an SAE to our main office for a direct debit form.

FINAL CONFLICT

WELCOME TO issue 17 of Final Conflict, the best Nationalist magazine in the WHOLE WORLD!

Yes siree! We won't bore you with election results. That's right - no 5% in Little Wantage for Bobby Boggins in this mag. Just sheer fun and good, clean, Revolutionary Nationalism. What more could you possibly want? (Apart from Intifada Worldwide, obviously...)

1998 will witness the Euro-Elections. We look forward to yet more money being poured down the drain by fools who should know better. We say that the European parliament is the bastard child of the New World Order. To even attempt to send people to it is like trying to get your children to appear on 'Sesame Street' amidst all the rampant race-mixing propaganda.

In short - it's just not on! There is NO EXCUSE!

But, let's not dwell on the media circus and system extravaganza that is parliamentary politics. There's so much positive stuff going on.

The appearance of The Voice of St. George on the streets of England has, in the humble opinion of this editor, been an absolute Godsend. Now we can read about the Counter Power in action (whilst others STILL discuss 'what ifs') and the Movement's progress around the country - not to mention sound analysis of problems such as economics, faggots, multi-racialism etc.

FC readers should do all they can to ensure that 'TVOSG' is read by all their sympathetic friends and distributed as far and wide as possible.

FC is trying to fit in with all this expansion of the Movement (in all spheres) by pushing everything it does. You'll see this issue that the FC Prisoner Welfare fund is being taken over by new bods who'll be raising money to send yet more goodies and letters to our incarcerated brethren.

On top of this we're pushing for more FC distributors, both in the UK and overseas. Plus, we're looking into whole new ventures which will make your eyebrows singe with excitement - more news on those in future issues.

So, now's the time to dig deep and help the FC 2000 Fund. We've had good feedback from last issue - but we do need A LOT more if we are to do everything required. Even if you just send in a few pounds here and there or add a fiver onto an order... everything helps!

As the Movement goes from strength to strength, we need FC to be up there at the forefront, blazing a trail! With your help we will be....

WHAT A LOAD OF BULL

THE LABOUR GOVERNMENT looks set to ruin the farmers of Britain. Not content with the mess the Tories made, they've compounded the suffering by the ridiculous ban on beef on the bone. Whilst we're free to eat the garbage dished up by burger chains, we can't eat T-Bone steak from grass-fed herds of cattle.

The veggies must be jumping for joy as this is the best propaganda they could've hoped for.

But for the rest of us carnivores, this whole episode brings us back to what we at FC have said before: Until we, as a nation, return to sound agriculture and husbandry - based on family farms and workers' co-operatives and not sprawling agri-business, these sorts of aberrations will continue.

Until we, as a nation, return to sound agriculture and husbandry ... these sorts of aberrations will continue.

We must do away with chemicals in all varieties of farming - not just cattle farming, so that we can be confident what we're eating is wholesome and not pumped full of this, that and the other, in order to increase profits or shelf-life.

Until such a time as the people of England and the Celtic Nations can reclaim their lands and we witness a widespread ownership of the land and the means of production in agriculture, we should ban all imports and make the current system as self-sufficient as possible.

Beef could be 'cleaned up' and made available again. We could give away or sell cheaply any over-produced meat and other foodstuffs to pensioners, unemployed families etc. instead of destroying it because of EU quotas. These are just a few of the steps we could take to get this country into shape again.

Needless to say nothing remotely like this will happen. The political parties are too tied up with our Euro Overlords in Brussels who dictate what we can and cannot do.

Just look at how Tony Blair condemned the Welsh farmers for throwing Irish Beef into the sea. This beef was being imported cheaply to undermine our farmers and all he can do is condemn the farmers who are driven to such acts out of sheer desperation. Of course no mention was made of the other beef being imported into Ireland and then shipped on to Britain as "Prime Irish Beef" - like the lorry load of German Udders one lot of farmers found destined for a burger chain.

Once again our people are being sold out by spineless politicians. First it was the coal miners, now it's the farmers.

Let's just hope the backlash continues and that the rotten edifice that is parliament and the EU bureaucracy gets swept into the sea, along with all the cut-price imported meat.

BIG BROTHER IS HERE!

NEW DRIVING licenses this Summer which have the drivers' photo and the hated EU flag will be nothing less than an ID card.

If you get a new license or move house, you will have to have this new ID card.

At first it won't be compulsory to carry one (though this is bound to follow), so everyone should make a point of leaving theirs at home.

We are witnessing the beginning of measures designed to control the movement of people. The cashless society, motorway electronic tolls, prisoner tagging - welcome to Soviet Britain!

THE FC 2000 FUND

IN THE LAST issue of FC we pushed the FC 2000 Fund as a means to raise money to get new equipment for FC (for full details see the last FC or our latest merchandise catalogue). Since then we've had some good responses - but we really do need a lot more...

As you'll notice on the right we've had a little over £50 sent in so far and have managed to double the size of our Celtic Cross - but we need to get a lot more donations in, if we are to get the laptop and scanner we need so badly.

We know such things aren't glamorous - but we're not asking for your money to be frittered away on elections. Once we have these things - they'll be concrete assets for the Movement, not tomorrow's headlines of another 3% and another lost deposit.

So come on! Dig deep and send in as much as you can afford. We want to build FC into a powerful structure that will help the TP Counter Power grow. We need your help!

Donations should be sent to: 'THE FC 2000 FUND', BCM 6358, London, WC1N 3XX, England.

DONATIONS SO FAR...

£25 - EH, Arizona, USA.
£5 - CH, Cardiff, Wales.
£5 - GC, N. Ireland.
£7.50 - DR, N. London.

Local News

This column will replace the old 'Third Position News' feature - as readers can get all such information from The Voice of St. George (TVOSG) and Conquest (TP members' bulletin).

DUNDEE

Following on from our bits in previous FCs about what individuals can do if they follow their convictions, a 60 year old activist in Dundee carried out a one man crusade against homosexual propaganda adverts on the city's buses. He ripped down offending posters and scattered them on the floor of the town hall, telling the council employees what he thought about their sponsorship of this "gay switchboard". Not one bus driver complained about his actions - one even said "well done".

Other activists should take note.

NORTH WEST

Activists in the North West, on top of all their other actions (see TVOSG), produced a cracking sticker which blamed Freemasons for the death of Princess Di. Whether they did or not, (it might have been the Rotary Club), it raises a chuckle or two, and awareness of conspiracy theories. Good stuff...

CORNWALL

Local supporters have been active in the protest about local hospitals closing down. Our Celtic cousins down in Cornwall are up in arms - and rightly so - about 'New' Labour threatening to shut their hospitals. The locals have demanded that the usual lefty placards don't appear on the protests.

THE ENGLANDER

A new broadsheet has come out entitled 'The Englander' produced by TP activists. As we go to press, two issues have been sent out. Anti Blood Sports and Conservation seem to be a major part of the message being pushed, alongside English Nationalism, Repatriation etc.

Supporters interested in seeing 'the Englander' should write c/o FC, enclosing three 2nd class stamps, and we'll forward all mail.

FC GOES ITALIAN

Foglia di Lotta ('The Struggle Paper') - the street paper of the NR 'Forza Nuova' - recently ran an interview with Final Conflict. 'FdL' publicised FC's e-mail address as well as a decent plug for FC magazine. See FC #18 for an interview with the FN.

ALL AROUND THE WORLD . . .

ZIONISTS PUT PRESSURE ON MORE COUNTRIES

IT ALL SEEMED to start with the fuss over the Swiss banks. We've had documentaries, we've had government ministers appearing at conferences, we've had America putting huge chunks of cash into Zionist funds. What commentators with a bit of brains have said is that most of this money - and any money squeezed out of the Swiss banks - and we know the Zionists can get blood out of a whole Palestinian village, oops sorry, I mean a stone - may go to a few old Jews ("survivors") who they hope will leave some of it to Zionist groups in their wills. But most importantly, most of the money will go into the coffers of the international Zionists.

THE UKRAINE

Not content with their high profile assault upon the Swiss (sorry - they were neutral in the war, weren't they?), our Zionist chums have carried out a few other 'assaults' which haven't been so widely publicised.

In the Ukraine, a Zionist crew is 'jumping on the bandwagon' by demanding the return of monies and property "stolen" from Jews from before WW2.

Our Ukrainian correspondent tells us that Jews were never allowed to own property in the Ukraine, but were allowed to rent - which they did. So how they can claim to have had property stolen from them is perplexing.

Our correspondant continues: "President Kravchuk even offered an apology to the Jews for the wrong committed against them by Ukrainians throughout the centuries.

"The Jews were the ones who, as members of the NKVD and then KGB, murdered and tortured my people and destroyed over ¼ of the population in their attempt to subdue their independent spirit. Has the world gone completely mad?"

Clearly it has. Apologies - if there are to be any - work both ways.

Stop Press: Some Ukrainians are now in the process of suing Jews for their crimes.

LITHUANIA

It could be that in picking on Lithuania our Zionist buddies have bitten off more than they can chew.

Zionists have long demanded that the Lithuanians bring War Crimes trials against Lithuanians who collaborated with the Germans in WW2. However, the Lithuanians have called the Zionists' bluff.

The Lithuanian Prosecutor General, Kazys Pednycia, has said that they are willing to look into these crimes - but will also bring trials against Jews who murdered Lithuanians under the Soviet occupation.

Of course the Zionists went mad. Simonas Alperavicius, chairman of the Jewish community of Lithuania said such a viewpoint was "historically wrong", "non-ethical" and "absolutely false". But he let the cat out of the bag when he admitted that there were high profile Jews serving with the Soviet secret police, but he claims they were acting as Soviets - not as Jews (debatable - but does it matter? They're still guilty of War Crimes - Ed).

Lithuanians say that the Jews had collaborated with the communists, especially during the 1940-41 Soviet campaign to exile thousands of locals to Siberia.

In an effort to bring 'Brave Little Lithuania' into line, in early December, 30 members of the U.S. Congress sent a letter to Lithuanian President Algirdas Brazauskas urging him to stand by his 1995 pledge to put suspected war criminals on trial. Obviously they want 'nazi' "War Criminals" dealt with - but Soviet/Jewish ones conveniently forgotten.

POLAND

And the fight back continues... In Auschwitz concentration camp, in 1984 and 1986, young Poles doing maintenance work placed eight white, wooden crosses.

The Zionists put the pressure on to have them removed. (What? Haven't they heard of tollerance and understanding? - Ed).

Not to be outdone the Poles then removed the Crosses - and 11 Jewish stars of David.

RUSSIA

But when it comes to thwarting the machinations of International Zionism our cousins in 'Holy Mother Russia' know the score.

A Jewish news agency reported it like this: "The exact circumstances surrounding the deaths of Russia's last imperial family have long been shrouded in mystery.

"But the confusion took a bizarre turn when the Orthodox Church asked: Did Czar Nicholas II and his family perish in "a ritual murder" perpetrated by a Jewish conspiracy?"

It seems the Russian government is holding a commission into the deaths and the synod want this question addressed.

Some claim it is to lay the ghost to rest and finally refute 'ritual murder' claims. In typical arrogance, Moscow's chief rabbi, Pinchas Goldschmidt, said he was ``very concerned" by the development and would demand an apology from the Russian Orthodox Church. That should harmonise matters!

The version of the Czar's death that became widely accepted by Russian monarchists and others was that of White Army (Russian anti-Bolshevik) investigator Nikolai Sokolov, who said that the Royal Family's bodies were destroyed and could not be found and that he had discovered kabbalistic "signs" in the room where the Royal Family was shot.

This was widely reported in the expatriate Russian press. Many Russians still believe it today, despite Zionist propoganda.

THE 'CODREANU DAYS'

OUR ROMANIAN Comrades organised a superb weeked over the weekend of St. Andrew's Day - the day on which Codreanu and 13 Comrades were murdered by the Romanian authorities. Guests included an Italian professor, Legionnaire Eugen Ratsiu from Fagaras - brother of Horia Sima, a priest from Cluj, a priest from a friendly monastery and a Comrade from Austria.

Comrades from across Romania were also present. The itinery was:

Friday evening the guests attended the weekly Stoicanescu Club, in a reunion special for the Commemoration of the Captain's death.

On Saturday morning a religious service was held at the Green Forest for the Legionnaire Spiru Blanaru and his anti-Communist armed group executed there by the Securitate in 1949. Then the first meeting of the 'Codreanu Days' took place, on the theme Codreanu in Europe. This was followed by a discussion on communication in Europe.

Sunday at 1pm, after the Holy Liturgy, in the Church of the Students, Orthodox religious service for the Captain Corneliu Codreanu, for his 13 comrades that were assasinated together with him, and for the other fallen Legionnaires. Then there was a short pilgrimage to the tomb of Mr. Zack. Then there was lunch at a Monastery.

Next, a visit to Fr. Ioan, an old Legionary fighter, which delighted the foreign visitors. The rest of the day, there were talks on varied matters.

As if all this isn't enough - our Romanian Comrades have also launched the 'FC Manifest' - a monthly FC in Romanian that goes out to all supporters and is distributed free to students.

A DAY TRIP TO VUCOVAR

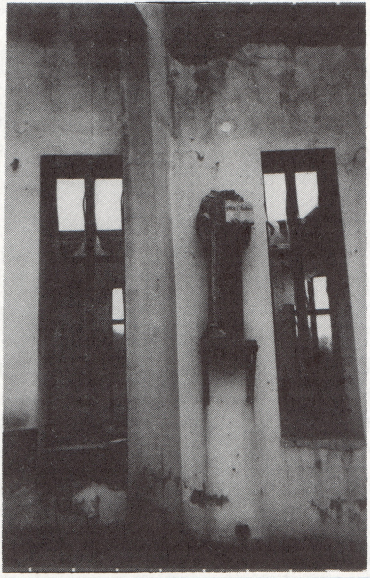
AUTUMN 1997, four young nationalists (including your reporter) from 'Croatia Solidarity' are off to Croatia in an effort to help local people in need. But seeing as Croatia is recovering well from the wounds of war, and the agenda of the 'Croatia Solidarity' is 'completed', we decide to seek some action and to visit the only 'forbidden' city of Croatia (until now): Vukovar.

Pakrac was fiercely attacked by Serbian forces and had to pay a heavy price for its freedom. It is mostly destroyed. It was finally freed after a Croat offensive in 1995.

Vukovar, the Croat 'Stalingrad' alongside the Danube, is the last part of the Republic of Croatia occupied by Serbs. Once these Serbs occupied one third of Croatia (regions of Krajina with cities like Vukovar, Pakrac or Knin that you might remember from news bulletins), and had their own 'Republic of Krajina'. But thanks to two strong operations (operation 'Flash' '95 and 'Oluja' ['storm'] '95) by the Croat Army, these areas are free again and Croats who had escaped from Serbian hell can return to their homes and villages...

Except for Vukovar. To be certain of keeping 'one foot' on Croat soil, local Serbs quickly (1992) agreed that 'United Nations peace keeping forces' were positioned between Serb and Croat fighters in the region along Serbia (region of Vukovar and Beli Monastir). Not for their other new gained territories (Pakrac or Knin). That's why they eventually lost them. But Vukovar is a real Serbian stronghold and things will not change fast... So we four 'visitors' noticed.

'CS's first humanitarian action was to collect toys for Croat children. It began with 1000 toys in 1993, but clothes, medicines and funds have since been collected and distributed to Croats in need.



Right: This Church is outside the village of Svilaj, in the Croat region of Bosnia. The Serbs destroyed everything they could - including beheading this statue of St. Francis of Assisi. Locals are lucky the Church is left at all. It is surprising that for a war between two Christian Nations that such a thing would happen. One can only assume some of the old Communist Yugoslav mentality remains.

MEETING
CROATIE LIBRE

To raise funds for the projects of Croatie Solidaritié, 'CS' is present at major Nationalist events like Diksmuide (Flanders), BBR and Chire et Montreuil (France) and many other places.

To notice this fact, one has first to enter Vukovar. And that's not an easy matter. If you want to pass the UN zone/line from one side to another, there are 3 ways to do it: 1. You're a UN soldier, stationed in the sector, but you still need documents, badges... not easy. 2. You work in a UN bureau in the region, but even then you still need documents. 3. You're a known reporter and the company you work for is CNN.

To get the necessary documents, if you don't belong to one of the three categories above (or if you're not a fervent one-worlder), well forget it! And from the Croat side, don't expect anything, because the Serbs agreed with the cease fire and one of the conditions was: that only Croats living in Vukovar before 1991 (most are displaced, dead or missing...) can go to Vukovar. No other Croat has the right to set foot in Vukovar (unless your name is Franjo Tudjman and you are President of Croatia and commander in chief of the HV/Croat army).

So, to enter Vukovar for simple living souls like us is not easy, unless you have guts. And that's just the one thing we have. So, we set off from Nustar (last Croat town before Vukovar) to the UN line. Not much traffic on this small road, so you're soon at the UN line. It was a small post, with a few small tanks and held by Russian commandos (Spetsnasz). 'Do you speak Serb?' is the first question the gate guardian asks to us. Fortunately one of our team speaks fluent Croat and a conversation is started: 'Mr. Soldier, we have an urgent appointment with the International Red Cross supervisor in Vukovar and these other three persons in the car are reporters...' Our French, Croat speaking friend shows the Russian commando an insignificant card of an insignificant organisation in France and tells the Russian commando, that this is the organisation he was sent by. It's a chance in a billion, that our gate guardian would believe such a cranky story. Apparently our Russian friend ('soldier Igor', I saw on his uniform) was still under shell-shock from Afghanistan, because in one second he opened the gate, let us through (without any report to officers, stamps on passports etc.) and even waved us goodbye on our way to Vukovar.

So we were back on our small journey, straight to the city. Still some kilometres through untouched farm land, since 1992, when nature took control. Everywhere, barbed wire and signs telling us everything is mined, not a human soul to be seen in the area. A bit further, the first destroyed Croat grain silos and the first village. Not one house destroyed, a lot of human activity, tractors driving around; this must have been a Serb village for a long time. People on the street don't look too much at us, it seems they don't care about us four strangers. So, on to Vukovar itself.

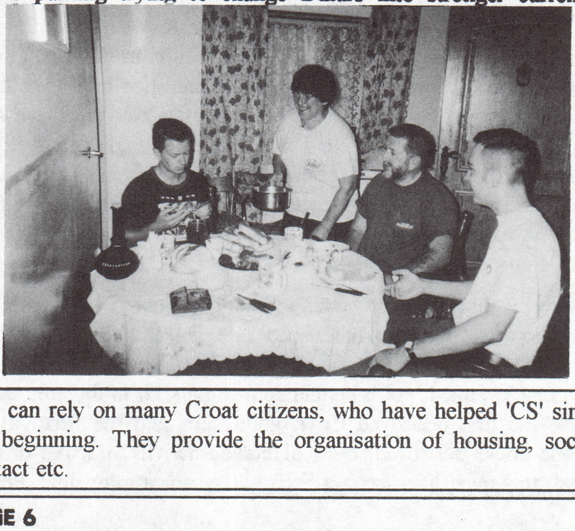
On the first street corner of Vukovar, we have to turn right and fall in the mid of a UN convoy. Even they don't seem to care or ask for papers. As the convoy drives slowly, we have plenty of time to look around. We pass by the railway station (destroyed) and closed factories. Not too much human activity in this area. After some kilometres, we arrive in what should be the centre of the city. Luckily for us it was market day. We decide to stop here and park the car nearby. The UN convoy goes straight on. Once our car is parked, I see some men coming to us with a lot of notes in their hands. We have to pay for parking, I thought. As soon these men come to me (I thought, they must have smelt that I'm a "rich foreigner" with loads of money) another man immediately tells me in German that these fine gentleman want to change their worthless Serb Krajina Dinars into German Marks, US Dollars or even into "the money of the devil"; Croat Kunas. I decide not to change, because my German Marks are a stronger currency here.

18 NOVEMBRE 1991 — 18 NOVEMBRE
N'OUBLIONS PAS - NE ZABORAVI
VUKOVAR

A 'CS' demonstration in Paris, 1995, to rally support for Croatia.

We noticed two things straight away: We were immediately spotted by local people from the market. They saw that we were not Serb, but foreigners. This wasn't a problem, they let us walk around freely. Secondly there was not one Croat in the neighbourhood. Only Serbs. 100% of Serbs (from here, from Bosnia and of course from Serbia, the motherland, which is only a few kilometres from Vukovar). So here, for our own safety, we're no longer four young nationalists of 'Croatia Solidarity' here in an effort to help Croats in need, but 'tourists' with a lot of Marks, here for one day.

Market day, a chance to buy some 'local products'. But soon, we notice this market is filled with all kinds of cigarettes, car radios etc. - all black market. Goods coming from Montenegro through Serb Bosnia. Original Marlboros are for sale at less than one US dollar per packet. Car radios at one fifth of the normal price. All small shops are run by women (their husbands are at the other side at the parking trying to change Dinars into stronger currency). These women are very friendly. We can pay in any currency we want, even in "the money of the devil"; Croat Kunas. Business is business. Even for Serbs. These people, according to some, 'defend' us, 'protect' us from an European Muslim empire in Bosnia. That's funny, because just some time before (the same day) in Croatia, I had 'Globus' (a well-known Croat magazine) in my hands. I was reading an article about black market in Serb areas, where even Serbs work alongside Muslims to transport their 'black' goods'. Co-operate financially with your enemy, to kill him afterwards with the fruits of your common business. Strange people, I think I will never understand them. We leave the market and head into the city.



'CS' can rely on many Croat citizens, who have helped 'CS' since the beginning. They provide the organisation of housing, social contact etc.

We go to some shops further on, where an old Serbian woman sells Serb and Croat newspapers, even 'Globus' with the article on the Serb black market in it. We buy some 'new' local postcards of Vukovar in Cyrillic as a memory to this time when the Serbs reign this area. Here, every house, every building is destroyed; except the post office. The Croat post office, because officially this area is still in Croatia (a small reminder: at the beginning of '98, UN troops leave and Vukovar will be 100% Croat again). We enter this new building, every text is in Croat (Roman characters) and Serb (Cyrillic characters), but not even here in this official Croat building is there a single Croat person. Only Serbs. This is true for the clients and the workers. A Croat here, without a platoon of UN soldiers (like our Russian friend Igor)? That would be 'mega-risky' for him. That seems to be the Serb strategy (the same as the foreigners do in our own cities): all stick together and make the 'local', the 'aboriginal', (we in our own cities and the Croats in Vukovar) feel like he is the 'intruder', the person who isn't supposed to be here. Already, some Croats come back to live in the region, but only in small villages, where they are sure to have the majority. Serbs will stay, they all stick together in Vukovar.

One of the projects of 'CS' is to open a French cultural centre in the new lyceum of the Franciscan friars in Slavonski Brod. This has been built in a former 'Yugoslav' army base.

We post our Serbian cards and pay with Croat money, because here only Kunas count, nothing else. Original isn't it ? You're in Croatia, in a region held by 100% of nasty Serbians in a official Croat post office where you post Serb Cyrillic post cards, pay in Croat money to a Serb postal employee... typical.

Some photos are took of this part of the city, we do this 'secretly', because we don't know how the local people would react. Taking photos of Croat ruins in a Serb held area, is still dangerous and at such a moment, even our Russian friend Igor could not help us. Like pictures of the Danube, where a lot of ships do business with the other 'side' of the river: Serbia. Like the monument of fallen 'partisans' against Croat "nasty fascists". Not in WW2, but now! Don't forget, according to local Serbs, Vukovar was, and still is, Serb. Croats tried to steal it in 1991, but once more 'partisans' stood up to defend the 'nation', blah blah blah... just unbelievable!

We walk around in the former Croat part of the city and end up in the Serb area. There, everything is rebuilt, shops are filled with

- IN OCCUPIED CROATIA

Levis 501s, pretty girls sun-bathe by the Danube, young Serbian males drive around in their new cars (mostly big German cars). It seems they will not leave Vukovar like that and will keep to their strategy of 'scorched earth' That's a fact.

A delivery of much needed supplies in Croatia, 1995. 'CS' provided a lifeline to a Nation under siege.

Time to drink something. We stop at a nice pub (Serb of course) and order some beers. Not delicious Croat beer (like Karlovacko), but Serb beer. You can taste the difference. The terrace of the pub is filled by 'modern' Serbs who do their shopping around. Everything seems peaceful, we even begin a discussion with a young Serb who works there. Until a red Toyota Celica stops before the pub. Inside the car, two real Chetniks (the first I saw there). Well, these two had really nasty faces (with long hair) and at that particular moment I wouldn't like to be a Muslim from Srbrenica or Sarajevo. Even all the Serbs in the pub became 'super silent'. It seems, that the Chetniks are the ones who rule the place. The reason for their visit: they'd come to collect a portrait of general Mijhaelovic (the Serb Chetnik leader in W.W.II). All the time they were there, these two didn't smile for a single second and I felt I could forget a photo together with them. Damn. They were off again in their Celica and all people in the pub begin to talk, they came back to life. Chetniks rule by terror.

This heavily scarred and pockmarked building shows the extent of the fighting that went on as Croatians fought to secure their independent fatherland.

Time to go to the other side of the region, to the south of Vukovar. After parking, one of our team takes a photo of Serbian car with a 'nice' sticker. Meanwhile I have noticed between all the Yugos and Opels, a big Mercedes Benz (a SEL 500 to be precise) with two nasty Serbian men looking at us. Just looking.

We leave the city, but at once we see a (Croat) Catholic church on a little hill. The church is completely destroyed (Beirut style). We decide to take picture 'on the move'. But at once a car comes alongside ours. Guess who? The Mercedes Benz SEL 500... The driver (slightly 'excited' by our wish to take photos of Croat monuments) makes it very clear that taking photos is not 'allowed'. We're four smart young people and understand that we don't have to try to talk with the excited Serb, or even stay there. We know that getting into Vukovar (without papers) is a miracle, running around (not being Serbs) is a miracle, even taking some discrete photos is a miracle... and that we don't have to push our luck any further. So, we wisely decide to still drive around but not too long and we don't stop the car until we reach Croat lines. We drive and on our way back, once more we pass at the Croat Church. Cool as we are, we take our photos while the car is still driving. Like the symbol of Vukovar: the famous water tower, one of the Croat church and one of the railway station (where we stopped for some minutes) and then hit it back to Nustar (Croat) through the small road.

We still have to pass once more the UN lines. Just like in the morning, they let us pass just like that. Our friend Igor and a Russian officer, plus a Nigerian and Jordanian officer waved us 'Goodbye'. Just like you would leave DisneyWorld! Those UN people are so naive. Unbelievable.

We decide to end our day in our favourite local Croat Nationalist pub in the area : the U bar in Vodinci (U means Ustachi: Croat fascists, their leader was Ante Pavelic), where we tell our fantastic story to the barkeeper. He was slightly surprised, but assured us, once the UN leaves and Vukovar becomes 'officially' Croat again, things would change... A lot.

Nationalist songs go down well in modern Croatia. And so the struggle continues on the other side of Europe...

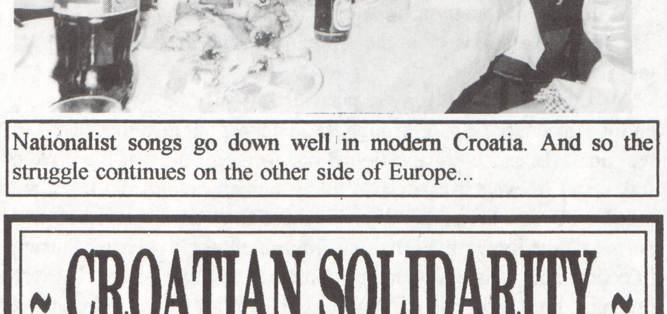
CROATIA



ABORTION - QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

We are grateful to our Irish Comrades for sending us this information. FC readers would do well to remember these arguments, to win over more 'liberal' Nationalists - and for arguments with Reds, One Worlders and Capitalists.

1. Is there life from conception?

YES.

At the moment of conception all the elements that create a new human being are present.

23 chromosomes of the father and 23 of the mother unite to form an absolutely unique human being, totally distinct from his parents, forming a new 46 chromosome cell. After a complex process has occurred with the fertilised ovum, some 30 hours after insemination, the cell division occurs. From that moment on any further formation of that child is purely a matter of development, growth and maturation.

For a seed to grow there must be life. Therefore for a child to grow there must be human life. If a baby is not alive, then why is he growing. If there is nothing there, why have an abortion!

"Physicians, biologists, and other scientists agree that conception (they defined fertilisation and conception to be the same) marks the beginning of the life of a human being - a being that is alive and is a member of the human species. There is overwhelming agreement on this point in countless medical, biological, and scientific writings".

Report, Subcommittee on Separation of Powers to Senate Judiciary Committee S-158, 97th Congress. 1st Session, p. 7.

2. If an abortion is carried out at an early stage, can the baby feel pain?

YES!!!

A baby's heart starts beating between 18 and 24 days. At 20 days the foundations of brain, spinal cord and nervous system are laid down.

All living creatures have a nervous system and nerve endings, and it is because of and through these nerves endings that they can feel pain. (Because the abortionist has to piece together the broken fragments of what was once a living human being, abortions are not done before 8 weeks, simply because the baby is too small and parts of the body may be left in the mothers uterus causing infection and sterility. Also most mothers do not know they are pregnant until after the 6/7th week). Therefore as the baby grows and the nervous system becomes more complete the unborn child can most definitely feel pain.

At 8 weeks, and all abortions are performed after eight weeks, the baby is completely formed and suffers an unimaginable agony inflicted by the abortion. Films like The Hard Truth and The Silent Scream portray the suffering of these babies.*

When you stick a baby with a pin, she will object. Her initial reflex recoil is exactly what happens in the womb after 8 weeks when the same child is painfully stimulated. Changes in heart rate and fetal movement also suggest that intrauterine manipulations are painful to the fetus.

"What the fetus feels" British Med. Journal Jan 26, 1980, pp233-234. "As early as eight to thirteen weeks gestation, the human fetus experiences organic pain".

V. Collins, M.D. American Board of Anesthesiologists.

3. What about a woman's "Right to Choose"?

The Right to Life is antecedent to all other rights. There are two different separate human beings involved in a pregnancy, and by allowing a woman to kill her child, you are denying that child the Right to Life and the 'Right to Choose' whether he can live or die.

Nobody has an unlimited right to do what they want and the right to choose can never supersede the most basic right to life.

Finally, remember that of the 50 million helpless, mute, innocent lives that are lost to surgical abortion every year, 28 million are little girls. (In Third World countries and in China, a far higher number of girls are aborted).

If by exercising your right to choose you will harm, injure, or, in the case of abortion, kill another human being then you cannot do as you choose. If for example, I wished to murder my neighbour, my neighbour's right to life would be more important than my wish or choice to kill him, and the law would prevent me from carrying out that wish. Laws are enacted to protect society from fundamental evils such as rape, assault and murder - therefore the law must protect our most defenceless citizens, the unborn children, from the horror of abortion.

4. Should abortion be allowed in the rape/incest cases?

NO!!!

Firstly, pregnancy from rape is very rare. Studies have given a figure of less than 1%.

Rape victims should be given every help and support whether or not they become pregnant; long term, compassionate counselling and assistance are needed to help to ease the trauma of such a terrible crime.

However, Abortion is not a solution to rape; it merely kills a child and creates two victims of rape.

People are led to believe that Abortion is needed, even essential, for rape victims. The opposite is true.

In the only known comprehensive study done to date by Dr. Sandra Makhorn in the USA, 85% of women who became pregnant through sexual assault, refused to have an abortion when it was offered to them.

Most of them said it was because they felt that abortion would be a second violation of their bodies. Some felt that it would be wrong to punish a baby for his father's crime.

Strangely these findings absolutely contradict the pro-abortion lobby's argument that all pregnant rape victims actively seek abortions.

Remember these studies were conducted in a country where abortion is considered normal - yet 85% of these women refused it when it was offered to them.

Many women said in Julie Makimma's excellent book "Sexual assault victims and their children" that although 10 years after the rape they had got over the trauma of rape they could not forget or forgive the terrible trauma of having an abortion.

The pro-abortion lobby actively use rape victims to further the pro-abortion cause. Kathleen De Zeean, a rape victim, says: "I feel personally assaulted and insulted every time I hear that abortion should be made legal for rape/incest victims. I feel we are being used, without being asked to tell our side"

Abortion following rape seeks to punish a child for her fathers crime. Any society based on justice cannot allow a system which condemns a child to death for the actions of another.

5. Is limited abortion - for rape victims, handicapped children etc. better that abortion on demand?

There is no such thing as limited abortion!

Arguments for limited abortion are used to introduce abortion on demand. In Britain, limited abortion was introduced in 1967 for rape victims, where the mother's health was at risk and for handicapped children. Now only .02%, only one in five thousand, of all abortions are performed for these reasons.

Similar patterns can be seen in almost all other countries which have abortion on demand, including the United States.

No matter what the reason for abortion - remember - the child always dies.

6. But aren't the "Pro-Choice" (Pro-Death) lobby for youth, for women and for the poor?

NO!!!

Abortion is war on youth because it kills the youngest and most defenceless of all young people - the unborn.

Abortion is war on women because it causes physical and mental ill-health. It leads to disrespect for women and attacks, such as rape, on women - in America where an abortion is performed every 23 seconds a rape occurs every 6 minutes. This is because where there is abortion, the traditional respect for women as nurturers of life and mothers, is broken down. Where there is no respect for life there can be no respect for women.

Abortion has been a war on the poor from the very beginning. Margaret Sanger who founded Planned Parenthood, the worldwide promoters of abortion, stated that "the kindest thing a large family can do to one of its members is to kill it". Planned Parenthood states that compulsory abortion and sterilisation should be legalised for the poor - if this seems like fantasy read the article in FC issue 9 detailing the atrocities carried out against Third World women by their respective governments with the backing of International Planned Parenthood Federation.

Abortion, far from being a compassionate caring service, is a money-making racket. The abortion industry is controlled and financed by millionaires like -

Rockerfeller Brothers
Ford Motor Foundation
Chase Manhattan Bank
International Planned Parenthood Ltd.
World Bank

Abortion has a devastating effect on society. When society accepts the murder of unborn children as a legal right, then that society's attitude towards murder in general will in time, change. United Nations figures show that Ireland has one of the lowest murder rates in the world. This is because it has not become numbed by the legalised butchery of abortion. In a society where human life is cheapened by abortion, all weaker members of that society are threatened by the uncaring anti-life mentality that abortion creates.

7. But won't pregnant women commit suicide if abortion is not available?

NO!

The Minnesota Maternal Mortality Committee studies conducted between 1950 and 1966 show that non-pregnant female suicides averaged 3.5 per 100,000 and pregnant female suicides averaged 0.6 per 100,000.

Suicide in pregnant women is extremely rare. Doctors Allan J. Rosenburg and Emmanuel Silver found in a study of three counties in Northern California that the number of suicides of pregnant women was roughly a sixth of that of non-pregnant women of the same age group.

A study in Sweden of 304 patients whose request for therapeutic abortion had been refused observed that not one actually committed suicide, although 62 indicated that they would if their request was refused.

This is naturally of relevance in Ireland at the moment. Records clearly show that suicide associated with pregnancy and early post natal period is very rare indeed. Whether it be effects of the hormone changes in pregnancy or some other factor, pregnancy is protective against suicide. Over the last 12 years for which records are available in the UK (1973-1984) there were only 14 such suicides in the whole of England and Wales; this included suicides up to one year of delivery. (A suicide rate of 1.9 per million births!)

In these cases the victims were psychiatrically ill at the time of their death, with schizophrenia and alcohol dependence being important factors. (British medical journal, 1991, vol. 302, pages 126 - 127) For comparison in the same 12 year period there were 5275 suicides in women aged 15-44 years (child-bearing years) in England and Wales. In order to make a valid comparison between these two figures, it is necessary to calculate the suicide rates per 100,000 pregnancies and 100,000 women of child-bearing age respectively. For suicide within 1 year of pregnancy/childbirth the figure is 0.19 per 100,000 births and for suicides in women of child-bearing age the figure is 3.5 per 100,000. i.e., the risk of suicide associated with pregnancy is 1/18 of that of non-pregnant women!

Furthermore, it has been shown that if the woman is suicidal in pregnancy, she is more likely to respond to proper psychiatric treatment than she is by having an abortion, which increases her depression and also increased the risk of severe post abortion psychosis. (Psychiatric journal of the university of Ottawa, 1989, vol. 14 pages 506 - 515).

9. Is the drug RU486 not an alternative to abortion?

NO!

RU486 is a drug that produces an abortion. It is taken after the mother misses her period. It's effect is to block the use of an essential hormonal nutrient by the newly implanted baby, who then dies. It does not prevent fertilisation. It is used only after the mother has missed her period and the baby is already 3 weeks old, with a beating heart. It is no longer effective after 6 weeks.

RU486 kills a developing unborn baby after her heart has begun to beat. The foetal heart begins to beat when the woman is four days late for her period. This pill is always administered after that, and up to her seventh week. Taken alone, the pills kill 85% of unborn babies. If followed with an expensive shot of prostaglandin, the toll goes to over 95%.

RU486 will cause the death of thousands of women in Third World countries. Prolonged and severe bleeding is common with this drug. In one major study, one woman in every hundred needed a D&C to stop the bleeding. This was in a tightly controlled clinical trial, in a very sophisticated atmosphere. In a Third World village the pills will be handed out by a health care worker, who then will leave. Because of preexisting anaemia in many women, severe and prolonged bleeding will be far more dangerous since in many areas there are no hospitals, methods of surgical stopping of the bleeding, and no transfusions available. Many of these women will bleed to death. At least one woman died from RU486 in France last year.

It also causes severe foetal deformity in surviving babies. It deprives the developing baby of vital nutrient hormone - progesterone - at the crucial time when the body structure and the organs are being formed. This powerful, poisonous, artificial steroid will kill most of these unborn babies, but not all. Those who survive will have a significant probability of major defects, including major limb deformities similar to those caused by the drug Thalidomide.

This drug may have an action similar to DES, which was used in the 60s to prevent miscarriage and which turned out to be a chemical time bomb. RU486 can also, in the body, react chemically to produce a free radical. This can combine with DNA, the genetic building blocks of our bodies. Through this mechanism foetal deformity can be produced at birth, and/or possibly show up 20 or more years later as a malformation or even cancer such as DES did. It is even possible that it could unite with maternal DNA to produce cancer or foetal defects in subsequent offspring.

HEAVY LUMPS AT NOON - or SNIPPETS FROM SPAIN

THE SUN RISES majestically above the nearby hilltop and as the first golden rays pierce the gloom, the struggling heroes of the Spanish Rural Revolution throw off their Laura Ashley quilts and leap to their feet with a crunch, due to the substantial number of dead flies which litter the newly tiled floor.

The problem was raised at a recent meeting and in spite of the solution of allowing the chickens to roam the house to peck up the beak sized portions of free protein, being proposed, it was decided that in practise, dead flies are preferable to chicken poo.

After a hasty breakfast of dried bread and coffee, the team assembles outside; savouring the fresh, sheep scented air (which remind our Kiwi Comrade of the green, green hills of home), while awaiting the morning address and the assignment of the days tasks.

A hush befalls the group as they await the words of their esteemed (but approachable) leader.

"OK men", he begins in a clear, crisp voice which holds them in rapt attention, "No duck ponds to clean out today, but something of even greater importance. The materials have arrived, the cement mixer is oiled and we have a full day ahead of us. A day of sweat, toil and torment, but equally a day which shall bring great rewards.

"All hands on deck boys; we've a 'garage' to build."

Hearts leap with joy and each man's to his post with a prayer in his heart and, for the less robust, gloves on their hands. (And what's wrong with that?)

First there are the vigettas to carry to the 'garage' and place across the walls (already built) to form the roof. The Spanish may call them vigettas, (that's their right), but to us they are affectionately known as heavy lumps; for heavy lumps they are. Pre-stressed reinforced concrete girders, over four metres long which have to be carried through another building awaiting demolition, passed through a window and then lifted three metres (10 feet) high and placed in position. No easy task, but willingly undertaken amid cries of laughter and singing (sort of). At last the first stage is accomplished and it is the turn of the bobadillos. A strange name, but one we like, so we use it unchanged.

What is a bobadillo, you ask? I will tell you! I'm like that, always willing to please. Bobadillos are shaped blocks made, in this instance, of baked clay (ceramic), which are placed between the heavy lumps to form a platform upon which

BARCELONA - 12th October 1997

Pack up your posters, stickers and FCs. This is Spanish Day (or something like that). So we set off in force (not farce? - Ed.) to invade Cataloña. We were happy when we got there as it took about four and a half hours driving. This was Saturday morning, so we went shopping. The driver found a copy of Beowulf in Olde English on LP in a second hand shop (I won't say how much he paid for it, as his wife would kill him). I blew about £25 in Spain's only 'Fascist' bookshop.

We met up with Comrades from two groups, then ideas, info. and one beer each flowed, followed by lunch in a Comrade's house. Three hours later two other Comrades showed up.

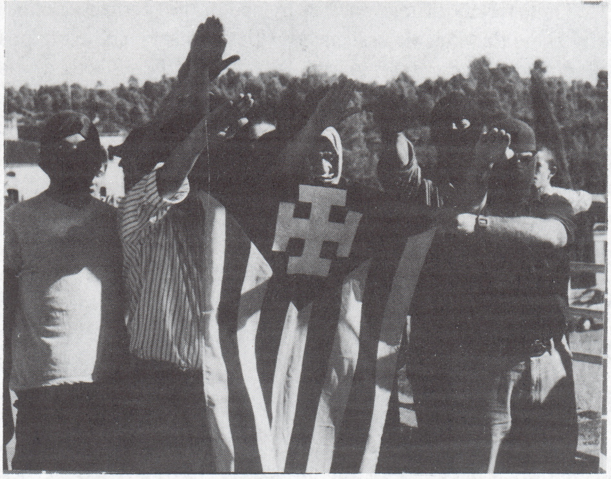
We all went to Church, then had a tour of the town and then into a very full bar (which only sold champagne and sandwiches). We couldn't get to the bar, but then a fight broke out which made a space, which we jumped into. Later it was off to an Irish pub with about 20 - 30 Comrades. To be honest we were well shocked by the amount of beer the Spanish were drinking!

Sunday morning before Church we went to the site of the demo to put up stickers, posters, a stall etc. About 1000 people were at the meeting at 12 noon to hear speeches from the AUN. ETA terrorism etc. was totally condemned by the main orators. Sadly the leader of the AUN could not be there as he was in prison for allegedly shooting someone in a disco.

We sold FCs, Voice of St. George's and gave out information to people in Spanish, including 800 copies of the Leon Degrelle article from FC which has been translated into Spanish.

One Spanish bloke said it was a surprise to see us there as "the movement in England is a lot smaller than it was in the late 70's, early 80's with the NF". We told him that things had changed, as we now know democracy is rubbish. He said he knew this as well and asked if we had anyone elected to councils etc. We told him obviously not as we do not believe in party politics, so we tell people not to vote. It seems that the motto in Spain is "I don't really believe in democracy... Vote for me!" Maybe it's time to translate "The ends do not justify the means" into Spanish.

¡NO VOTA!



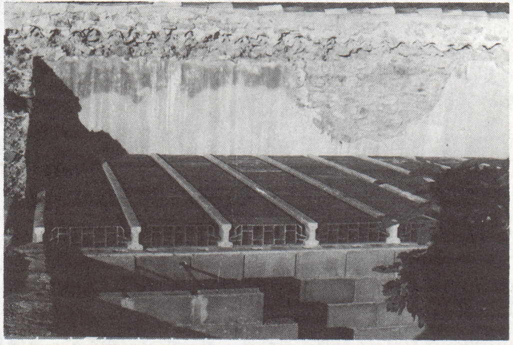
Who wants another beer? Hands up!

concrete is laid to give strength.

Only 221 to put in place. Childs play after the heavy lumps.

Now the real work begins.

Five tons of concrete to mix, wheelbarrow, transfer into buckets, pass through a window, carry up a ladder and lay to the appropriate thickness and level on the 'garage' roof. Each takes his place in the chain and hour after hour their labours continue, through lunch time, through the afternoon, whilst 'normal', Spanish people are asleep, and into early evening. It is with great disappointment that the days work is finally called to a halt, but to continue into the night would mean a less than perfect job being done and would be against the 'Guild Spirit', we strive to emulate.



Heavy lumps and Bobadillos in place, a little after noon.

The final chores are carried out. Tools cleaned, and things prepared for the next day. Each man then has time to attend to his own needs. To wash, change and eventually eat.

There being several nationalities present, the meals can often be strange and even amusing. Poison cabbage, dodgy mushrooms and boiled bunny being amongst the favourites. The conversation too can be extremely varied and range from the obvious political topics to 'Who invented the internal combustion engine?' (not, apparently, Porky the Pig), and the flushing toilet (we know that one).

At last, it's candles out and bed, 'till the dark is once more chased away by the glory...

Here our narrator trails off into dreams of thousand year dynasties, comfy accommodation and plates of sausage and mash surrounded by tankards of real ale being served by buxom English roses.

THERE AND BACK AGAIN - A HOBBIT'S HOLIDAY

WHERE ELSE would any good National Revolutionary be on the night of the 19th - 20th of November... No, not getting a good nights sleep. About 9pm we got to the house where José Antonio was born to see the Falange (FE - JONS), have a meeting in the street and then march all night with them to the Valle De Los Caidos (Valley of the Fallen - 53 kms away).

At the meeting we sold copies of 'La Nueva Reconquista', which is in Spanish, but has lovely photos. We met a lot of old Comrades, a lot of whom liked the FC e-zine (which I know little about).

After the meeting, 4-500 people marched to the edge of Madrid and then about 60-70 people marched the rest of the way in relay. It was a wet, cold, long and fast march. The last few kms were marched in step and then our Comrades with the Welsh flag and the Polish flag were asked to move forward. Once in the Church there were two bods with Falange flags at the front, two leaders carrying the wreath, followed by two columns of Falangists headed by... the Welsh and Polish flags!

Afterwards we went down to the bar for a beer. There were quite a few female Falange members, some of whom did the march (Ranting Ron was seen to ditch his phrase book in disgust and spent the next hour or so trying to say "Do you come here often?" - with little success). Re. the march: should you not want to do all of it, you can follow by car or hop on the Falange bus. Drop FC a line if you're interested for next year...

¡ARRIBA PATATAS BRAVAS!

WE MET UP with some Brits on Friday the 21st in the centre of Madrid and spent the day socialising as there wasn't much going on. Saturday morning, those of us who went on the march went to meet a few German Comrades, who'd invited us to spend the day with them. We went to the Blue Division (the Volunteers who fought on the Eastern Front) Museum and then had lunch. The police at one stage stopped us to say that political badges wouldn't be allowed. This was the first time this had happened and it did not bode well for the future.

After lunch we went back to the Valle again and then back to Madrid for dinner with the Germans and a Spanish group.

Unfortunately after dinner I had to give a speech, which I detest doing, so I spoke for a little while about the Counter Power idea. "How can we spend our money on elections, party offices, hotel rooms etc. while Comrades have no jobs, live in flats in cities, our children go to our enemies' schools etc. We must build our own homes, schools, businesses etc." - you know the rest. I got a round of applause, even though I asked them not to...

On the Sunday, for the second year there were two 'fascist' meetings and an anti-fascist one. We borrowed a bit of a table at the biggest rally and sold a wide range of stuff.

All in all a good few days. Only two bad points - lack of a lift for some of the lads (contact us beforehand next year and we'll sort it for you) and one 'Comrade' from Valencia who, when asked for 50 pesetas (22p) for the item we were selling, asked for a free copy. He did the same on the Sunday. For goodness sake - this is a revolution - not a party. If 50 Ptas is too much... then don't bother.

Point 1: Patatas Bravas are fried potatoes with spicy sauce. Yumm.

Point 2: Two Italians missed lifts too - but gave me a nice 'Roma' flag.

LUSITANOI

1. Tell us a bit about the band.

L: Lusitanoi! originated from a band called V Império that started playing in November '92. Since then we've had some changes in the line up but the actual formation is: Tiago - Bass and Vocals, Miguel - Guitar, Rodrigo - Guitar and myself, Branquinho - Drums.

2. How many recordings have you done?

L: We recorded an EP called "Olho por olho, dente por dente" (An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth) through the Italian label Tuono Records and two tracks for the compilation CD Soldados de Rua - Street Soldiers, released through the Portuguese label Dogs of War. We also started recording a CD, that will be released through DoW.

Lusitanoi live in Almada

3. What sort of music do you play and what are your songs mostly about?

L: We play Oi/RAC music, with some hard-core influences. Our songs are about our way of life, Nationalism, the problems of our Nation, revolution, Europe, football etc.

4. Have you played many concerts?

L: We've played only two concerts and they were great. Unfortunately it is very difficult for a skinhead band to play live in Portugal.

5. Tell us a little about the Portuguese Nationalist Movement - the music and the politics?

L: At the moment there are three bands: us, Extremo and Combate. There were other bands like Guarda de Ferro, Bulldogs da Patria, Confronto, and others.

NS parties and fascist organisations are forbidden by the Portuguese Constitution. There have been a lot of Nationalist parties, that usually haven't lasted too long. Some of the bigger ones were the MAN - National Action Movement (after a fight between skinheads and members of a small Trotskyist party - PSR, Socialist Revolutionary Party - in 1989, which resulted in the death of a PSR leader, the MAN was raided by the police and declared extinct by the Constitutional Court). The FDN (National Defense Front) was also raided by the police in the early 90s. A lot of material was confiscated and it soon folded.

Nowadays there are a lot of small parties which aren't as radical as the MAN or FDN. There is the National Alliance, the Right-Wing Nationalist Front and others.

6. What contacts do you have world-wide? Do you co-operate with any Spanish Nationalist organisations?

L: We have many contacts with bands and organisations world-wide. In Spain, we have contacts with the organisation Juventud Radical and other Spanish Comrades.

7. What are some of the worst problems facing Portugal?

L: One of the main problems is immigration. Portugal has a lot of immigrants, especially from the former Portuguese colonies (like Angola, Mozambique, Cape Verde, etc.) but also from other African countries, from India and from China. To make this situation worse, our left-wing government had the "brilliant" idea of legalising thousands of them, after winning the elections (extra voters! - Ed).

Portugal also faces drug traffic and a growing number of drug addicts, unemployment, a so-called democratic system (which only gives freedom of speech to some) and many other problems.

8. What do you think of all the tourists that go to the Portuguese coast every Summer?

L: We have nothing against tourism. Portugal is a beautiful country and we welcome everybody who wants to visit it.

Sure tourists help the economy, but in many places, built especially for the tourists, our culture is ruined and what's there can be seen anywhere else. Despite this, there are still many other interesting places to visit where you can see the real Portugal and get to know one of the oldest cultures of Europe.

9. If you could do a concert anywhere - where would it be and why?

L: We have no preferences. We would like to do a concert with good bands and a great audience.

10. Are there any Portuguese Nationalist heroes? Some of our readers may have heard a little about Salazar - can you tell us a little about him?

L: There are so many Portuguese Nationalist heroes, that I decided to choose one that was a great man and most people don't know about. Rolão Preto, leader of the National Syndicalist Movement in Portugal, known as the Blue Shirts. With ideals very similar to those of the Spanish Falange and José Antonio Primo de Rivera (with whom Rolão Preto met), and the JONS and Ramiro Ledesma, this Movement grew and in the early 30's it had more than 50,000 members. It was the biggest movement of its kind in Portugal. In the mid 30s it was banned by the Estado Novo (New State) of Salazar, because of differences of ideology and the power that the Blue Shirts had in the Portuguese Armed Forces, seen as a danger to Salazar's regime.

António de Oliveira Salazar was a great man, and a true Nationalist. He was a natural born leader. Considered by many as a moderate fascist, he was a Catholic, a traditionalist, and also anti-communist and anti-democrat. he formed a Corporate State based on the political organisation União Nacional (National Union), in which the main values were God, Nation and Family.

He revitalised the Portuguese economy, developed industry and built schools. He created the Mocidade Portuguesa (Portuguese Youth), a national youth organisation and the Legião Portuguesa (Portuguese Legion) which was the regime's militia.

Salazar was Franco's friend and supported the Nationalists in the Spanish Civil War, where many Portuguese volunteers fought.

The Estado Novo and Salazar, like Franco in Spain, survived World War II having kept their neutrality, and siding with the British after the war.

Salazar maintained the Portuguese Colonial Empire, that included Angola, Mozambique and other African territories, Goa and other territories in India, Macao, and East Timor. In the 60s the war in Africa started, instigated by the communists. Salazar died in 1970 and the Empire started to fall apart. In 1974 the Communist revolution of April 25th took place. the African Colonies were left to be controlled by Soviets and Cubans, and Portugal lived in political chaos until the end of the 70s. By then, Communism was beaten and a 'democratic' system has ruled the country ever since.

11. You recently started a fanzine. How popular has it been? Does it sell well?

PORTUGUESE WHITE POWER!

L: The zine is Sobressalto, which is still on its first issue. It has been very popular. It has sold well in Portugal, all across Western and Eastern Europe, in the USA and even sent copies to countries like Russia and Australia.

12. Most European Nationalists favour pulling out of the European Union, NATO etc. Do you believe this too? Are there any U.S. bases in Portugal?

L: We believe that Europe has to be united, but we do not believe in the kind of unity that the EU wants. We also believe that the WEU (the European Defence Force) should be stronger, and that Portugal should leave the Yankee controlled NATO.

One of the most important American air bases in Europe is in the Portuguese islands of Azores.

13. I understand the FC "We just hate all queers" stickers are popular there. Can we sell you some? But seriously, are poofs a problem in Portugal or are the people still traditionally minded?

L: Although people are still traditionally minded regarding homosexuals, especially due to their Catholic education, they are starting to be a big problem. They have a strong lobby, that controls most of the arts and fashion world and they also have a big influence on the media.

14. Any last words for FC readers?

L: Our thanks to FC for the interview. Keep up the good work. To the readers: keep the faith. The future is ours!

SHOW THEM YOU MEAN BUSINESS!

DON'T BEAT ABOUT THE BUSH - wear the new Final Conflict T-Shirt and show the liberals you mean business!

Designed with today's wacky 'politically correct' mentality in mind, this T-Shirt should be worn by all those fed up with the "gay rights", pro-abortion, race-mixing agenda of 'their' government and all the One Worlders.

As you should all know, the character Tintin is based on General Leon Degrelle, head of the Rexist Party in Belgian Walloonia and head of the Walloon SS Division on the Eastern Front, where he fought Bolshevism in order to save Europe and her Christian heritage.

Whilst morons wear 'wannabe black' designer gear, costing an arm and leg, imported from the Far East, and liberals swan around in their 'rights for poofs' T-Shirts; groovy, Nationalist dudes with style and flair wear the FC 'Fascist Tintin' T-Shirt.

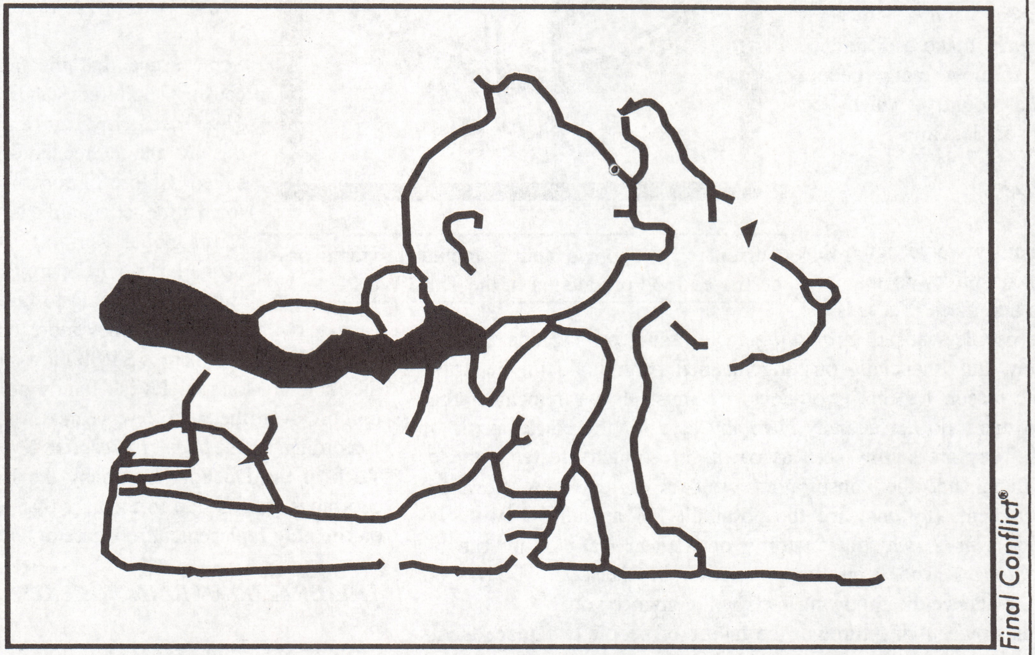
FASCIST



AND PROUD!

In red and black on a top quality grey T-shirt, it's a must for every Ranting Ron out there. THE NEW WORLD ORDER'S POPULATION HOAX

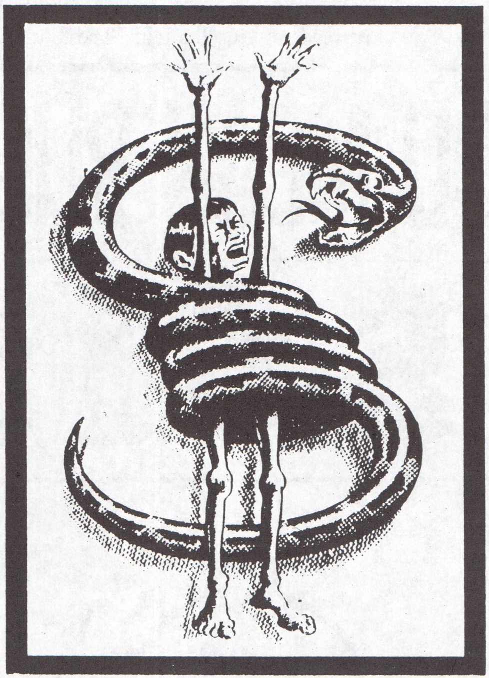
THE MYTH OF the "population boom" is one of those bizarre subjects that take a lot of time to figure out. The fact that most Nationalists would support the same objective as their most fierce enemies (ie International Zionism, Finance Capitalism and Socialism with all its fellow travellers) is one which surely anybody would agree needs discussing.

On a number of occasions I recall reading articles or statements by 'Nationalists' spreading the same disinformation about the need for State interference in regard to the "huge" World Wide birth rate. The time has come to expose the lies. International "Planned Parenthood" is a multi billion pound industry that has as its aim a conformist world of one or two child families. It is funded by everyone; from millionaire businessmen, to Governments and organized Marxism. Those Nationalists who are supportive of abortion or sterilisation for the Third World due to the fear of immigration are looking at the subject from entirely the wrong angle. There is no population crisis and even if there were, it still has absolutely no bearing on the subject. Immigration is a Government policy. There could be 10 million or one million in a country but if a Nation wishes to commit racial suicide then it wouldn't really make a difference in regard to how many people inhabit the country which the immigrants are leaving.



Corrupt CIA puppets and Communist tyrants have destroyed food production in the Third World.

CONSPIRACY

All Nationalists would agree that there is a conspiracy to integrate all colours and races. Yet it is the very same people who are promoting race mixing propaganda that are also actively and financially pushing planned parenthood in the Third World. The reason for this is obvious: we must always remember that our hidden rulers do not actually have any love for the black people of this world. They are simply seen as pawns in a much greater struggle. The last thing that the conspirators want is an emerging powerful African continent. (for instance the possibility of an alliance with the Arab world) This is why the majority of African Nations are run by American stooges who keep the population in check. Anybody who needs more evidence the following facts will convince you.

Europe is slowly dying through the failure of people to replace themselves. Yet we still have some Nationalists supporting planned parenthood.

FACT 1: Those who point towards famines in Africa as a good reason for forced family planning. The Ethiopian famine was not caused by crop failure but by inept government policies and the deliberate actions of rival factions involved in the ongoing civil war. In Ethiopia an important element in the Communist regime's war was the mass destruction of the tribal farming systems. The famine was nothing other than a state sponsored atrocity. Indeed the African countries currently experiencing famines are amongst the least populated and have some of the lowest population densities in the entire world. (Ethiopia 57.7 million people, 471,776 sq. m, 109 people/sq mile. Sudan 25 million, 96,757 sq mi, 25.8 respectively.) The list could go on. The widely publicised famine in the Sahel region of Africa in the early 1970's involved some 20 million people in the six countries which occupy a total area of more than 2 million square miles! The real reason for the famine was a huge area so grossly under-populated that it remains almost entirely underdeveloped.

Roger Lavelle, former director of the Harvard Centre for Population Studies stated that the less developed countries are capable of feeding 18 billion people which is more than 3 times the present world population.

"THE EARTH IS TOO SMALL"

FACT 2: To those people who support population control because they fall for the ridiculous lie that "the Earth is too small" ..."there are too many people" "There is not enough food" etc. Here are a few facts:

If all the people in the World moved into the State of Texas, each person could have the space of a typical American home and all the rest of the World would be empty!

Human beings only occupy 1% of the Earths land surface.

American farmers have so much surplus food that they must export two thirds of their crops. There are riots in France against food imports because there is too much food.

The EU is paying Irish Farmers not to produce food and tons of European food is being held in storage by the EU.

In fact if it were necessary India would be able to provide the entire world with enough food to live on.

THE "GREENHOUSE" EFFECT

Some argue that the number of people on the Earth is causing pollution and draining the Earths resources. Nonsense! How can any Nationalist have been taken in the by the "Greenhouse" hoax? Man made chemicals called Chlorofluorocarbons are found in aerosol cans, foam product manufacturing etc. and these are alleged to cause global warming by thinning the Earth's protective ozone layer. CFC's are to be phased out by the year 2000. But what is going to take their place? Du Pont chemicals have a replacement ten times more expensive and much less efficient which guarantees them a $30 billion annual market. Edgar Bronfman of the famous Montreal Jewish family personally stands to make over $10 million over the next few years through the ozone destruction hoax. According to the New Federalist Magazine (August 1989) with their stock in the Du Pont Company the Bronfmans are positioned to reap enormous profits due to the fact that Du Pont has cornered the patents on the only replacement refrigerators available.

THE BRAZILIAN RAIN FORESTS

Despite what Sting says, the afforested area of Brazil today is so big that you could fit the entire state of California into it 14 times! The fraction of this which is cut down each year is just six tenths of one percent, much of which is replanted.

So we now begin to see a pattern of lies emerging. The ideology behind the Population control industry has already been covered in FC issue 9. However, we feel that the issue is important enough to warrant more discussion. The United States' Jewish National Security advisor (and Bilderberger) Henry Kissinger feared that large numbers of young people could form effective protest movements against American interests in their native countries, and due to the fact that in Africa (as it was the case once in Europe) large families were seen as something to be admired, a discreet approach was necessary. Therefore when natives of Third World nations were in need of medical supplies, population control and "health programmes" were integrated. So we have a situation where a woman going for help for an ill child, could instead end up aborting one which she is carrying.

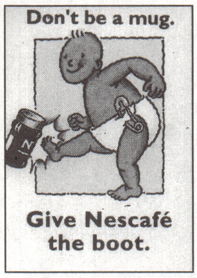
China is the example they use for the need for population control. We will leave it to freelance journalist Christopher Wren to show us where China's example is leading us: "women were locked in detention cells or hauled before mass rallies and harangued into consenting to abortions" he told of "vigilantes" who abducted pregnant women off the street and hauled them off handcuffed to abortuaries. According to reporter Stephen Mosher the Peoples Republic Press was openly speaking of the "butchering, drowning, and leaving to die of female infants and the maltreating of women who have given birth to girls".



Don't be a mug.
Give Nescafé the boot.

Logo of an anti-Nestlé campaign.

MONEY

The enormous amount of money made by the population control industry beggars belief. Samuel Preston, a demographer, said "that the doomsday scenario used by family planning advocates to promote their cause gets public attention and brings in money. Alarm of a population explosion brings in money, those who raise funds by sounding alarms have a vested interest in keeping the public scared." (Nationalists will notice the similarity with the way in which Zionists scare religious Jews with tales of swastika "daubings".) A perfect example is Nestlé. In Third World countries women used to breast feed their children up to three years of age. Breast-feeding is 70% effective against conception, therefore without realising it, women were spacing their children. However, large multinational companies such as Nestlé introduced powdered milk into the Third World and it was vigorously promoted. As a result women gave up breast-feeding and took up powdered milk. (which also increases disease, through contaminated water, and poverty, through needing to buy what was free). Obviously the womens' fertility increased and now there came the opportunity for the population controllers to promote and sell their 'family planning'.

AND NOW TO EUROPE...

The same people who are pushing immigration and multi-racialism are behind the theory and practice of population control.

Due to the different way of life in underdeveloped Nations the population planners had to be discreet. Not so in "civilised Europe" where millions of children are butchered in abortuaries every year. While Nationalists are defending Europe from immigration, our Nations are dying out from under-population. Indeed the German State's major excuse for the immigrants is that they are needed due to the lack of young people to fill vacancies. In Brandenburg births have plummeted from nearly 38,000 in 1989 to barely 12,000 in 1996. The State has even offered benefits of up to £400 for each child born (a similar scheme has also had to be launched in France) Fertility rates in Europe have fallen so low that no "replacement level" (i.e 2.2 children) fertility is expected in the foreseeable future. No fewer than nine countries in Europe now have more natural deaths than births.*

Total fertility rates in several European Nations have fallen to an all time low, Ukraine:1.7, France:1.66, Russia:1.6, Spain:1.23. In fact Spain has the lowest birth rate in the world. In Italy the work force of 20 million has been overtaken by the number of pensions being paid out. Recent research has shown that in the first third of the next century there will be two people drawing pensions to one person paying contributions. It is obvious that the costs will not be able to last. Yet still we have Whites who are more keen on having a new car, a better hi-fi, a foreign holiday, in fact anything other than more children. The future of Europe is in our hands, Nationalists must begin to awaken to the propaganda that is subtly destroying our Mother Europe; before it's too late.

*Bear in mind that these figures include the birth rates of non-Europeans - which are usually much higher than the indigenous population.

VETERAN FIGHTS ON!

Final Conflict-

Thoroughly enjoy your e-letter sent to me daily. Thanks for printing my note I sent you awhile back.

Although I'm an ancient veteran of WW2 (a ghastly, shameful conflict) and the Korean war, I have not lost my vim, vigour and enthusiasm for the great struggle before us: the rescuing of our Race.

CREDIT WHERE CREDIT'S DUE

Dear FC,

I'm not NS, but I was pleased to see the Waffen SS on the cover of FC 14/15. Too many nationalists who don't think a lot of Hitler (rightly so) are also critical of the many thousands of men who died fighting for Europe against Communism. People joined the SS for many different reasons (including Englishmen) and we should not forget this.

There was an excellent article on English volunteers in the Waffen SS in a recent edition of Candour newsletter. Your readers should avail themselves of a copy (each - not between them).

DEFENDING THE WAFFEN SS

Dear FC,

The recent flap over the movie 'Seven Years in Tibet' once again exposed the usual assortment of the intellectually challenged, making stupid, but politically correct remarks about the Waffen SS.

The Waffen SS was an army! It's young volunteers came from 34 countries and were the elite in an anti-Bolshevik crusade. The Soviet Union, America's ally, was preparing to invade Europe. But for German leadership it would have done so unopposed.

As a former combat Marine, I feel humbled by the sacrifices made by these men. Their enemy was our enemy; their battles were our battles. What does that make of us, poor pathetic creatures that we are? They have been demonised and their honour dragged through the mud by the emasculated and simple-minded.

Contempt for the truth cannot be tolerated forever. Political prostitutes of the "free" press should be held to account for their cowardly complicity in the big lies.

BONNIE PRINCE CHARLIE

Dear Sir,

I spent the weekend of St. Andrew's Day in Scotland and managed to visit the battlefield at Culloden (see reviews last issue - Ed.). It was quite an experience and I would highly recommend your readers to go there. The visitors' centre is superb and the moor is almost the same as it was in 1746 on that terrible day.

It's about time the '45 was given a favourable write up in a Nationalist journal. The legitimate heir to the throne was shut out by the Judaio-Masonic establishment in favour of 'George I', a German who couldn't speak one word of English! Plus, we all know what happened when the original imposter - William of Orange - took the throne: he allowed the Jews to set up their "Bank of England". 'By their fruits shall you know them' etc.

THE REVIEWS PAGES

LITERATURE

THE GUILD ALTERNATIVE by Arthur Penty. 60 pages. £4.40 including postage from Final Conflict (Add 10% overseas).

There has been a lot of talk about Guilds in the Nationalist movement in the last five years or so, but there has been no easy to read book available, which explains what a Guild is, how they came into being, and why they will be an essential part of English society in the future. Until now that is.

Arthur Penty was one of the founder's of the Guild Movement that was revived at the turn of this century, and it was a movement that grew rapidly amongst those who were opposed to State Socialism and Capitalism. In this book, he looks at how capitalist society works, both morally and economically, and then proceeds to outline the case for Guilds. It is a compelling case, which people who are seeking the true welfare of their country will read with interest and fascination.

Although there are many stimulating ideas in this book, none is perhaps more thought-provoking than the idea of the Just and Fixed Price - this is the idea that everything produced has a Just Price, and this Price is necessarily fixed. In other words, instead of constant price rises, fluctuations, gluts and scarcities, the Guild system would build a financial and economic system where prices were more or less traditional. Imagine the peace of mind that families would derive from knowing that income and prices would remain virtually constant? Imagine the idea that goods could only be sold when they were of an acceptable standard, and that cut-throat competition - which allows small businesses to be crucified by large corporations - would be illegal, and unable to function? The world that Penty outlines is really inspirational, so FC hopes that many of you will take the time to read this vitally important book

If you have ever wondered why Guilds have become popular in nationalist circles, you need this book. If you have never given them any consideration, you should, because they are the basis of the new Nationalist economy of the twenty-first century! A great book about a great idea.

THE PARTY SYSTEM by Hilaire Belloc. 116 pages. £5.50 including postage from Final Conflict (Add 10% overseas).

Hilaire Belloc was one of the great English nationalists of this century, so any book written by him is worth both the time and money. Yet this book, The Party System, is especially important because it puts the final seal of disapproval upon an institution that we have all come to hate deeply: Parliament.

We all hate Parliament, and yet for the last 50 years or so, nationalists have concentrated their efforts wholly on elections, on taking over a majority in Parliament. The idea, it seems, is that the problem lies not with the institution, but with the people in it. Eliminate the liars and thieves, and replace them with honest men, so the story goes, and we will have good government. This book blows that whole theory out of the water - from within. Belloc, unlike most of us, had the benefit of spending several years in Parliament as an MP; they were years that convinced him that nothing could be changed for the better whilst Parliament existed.

His attitude towards Parliament is not emotional. It is passionate, but it is not unthinking. He shows how the System operates - in itself a scandal! - and why it is the System that moulds the men, not the men the System. He then proceeds to look at the main suggestions for a reform: proportional representation, multiple voting, new laws on procedure, restrictions of Party power, and so on. Each and every one of these he takes apart, and shows that they have no chance whatever of getting rid of the cancerous power that dominates England.

This book teaches many valuable lessons, and thus should be read by every single nationalist. But the most important lesson that it teaches is that there is no electoral road to power for Nationalism. The sooner that message gets into the heads of nationalists the better. Until the hallucination of Parliamentary politics passes, nationalists will be condemned to an ineffectual ghetto. The future lies in New Ideas and New Ways. If you don't believe me, read Belloc's book and find out for yourself!

CRIMES AND MERCIES by James Bacque. Little, Brown and Company, 1997.

James Bacque's second book, entitled 'Crimes and Mercies', which provides new and hair-raising info (over and above that provided in his 'Other Losses') on the very little known massacres perpetrated by the victorious Allies against the prostrate German nation, after the latter's surrender in 1945. Curiously, Bacque does not categorise this unimaginable horror as a "holocaust". Yet, his estimate of German victims exceeds by far the well-known mystical figure of 6 million Jewish holocaust victims that is fiercely promoted by Zionists and their sycophants.

In the spirit of the times and in a century replete with holocausts, why should humanity not designate a German Holocaust, especially since it seems to be far more demonstrable - and morally far more reprehensible - than the coercively-proclaimed Jewish one?

Bacque estimates the number of murdered Germans - military and civilian, but for the most part civilian: women, infants and children, as well as the elderly - at a minimum of 9,300,000 and at a maximum of 13,700,000. Imagine: these deaths of innocents occurred after the war, in the period 1945-1950, when the German population surrendered itself unconditionally to the tender ministrations of the freedom-and-democracy-loving Allies!

Their numbers exceed by far the German total losses over the entire period of the war! This holocaust rivals in magnitude even the Stalin-operated holocaust-by-hunger of Ukrainians in 1933!

How was this possible? Bacque himself expresses puzzlement as to why and how it could have happened. that leading Western democracies, so naturally prone to humanitarian works of mercy in the Christian tradition, should have, in this instance, acted knowingly and with frankly enthusiastic cruelty in the style of one of the greatest mass murderers in history - J.V. Stalin - to perpetrate against the German people unthinkable crimes every bit as heinous as Stalin's.

He observes that, in counterpoint, the victors did not act in the same way against the conquered Japanese enemy. He reports General MacArthur, as Military Governor of Japan, to have demanded of Washington enough food to keep civilians alive: "Give me bread or give me bullets", he asked; and, indeed, Washington gave him bread.

Yet, at the same time, Washington gave the German nation mass starvation and death through the barbarian Morgenthau Plan, a brutal and senseless variance in approach which Bacque is at a loss to explain. I guess maybe Mr. Bacque does not yet fully appreciate the concept of "Talmudic vengeance".

Fifty years later, this vengeance is apparently not yet at an end. Bacque writes, in his 1997 work:

"A whole nation was maimed in peacetime, but when the events are even mentioned by the German survivors, they are immediately hushed up by their own government.

No one is allowed to dig for the corpses of the murdered prisoners in Germany. The criminals go free. To defend them, lies are told by historians who also defame the injured. Free expression of historical opinion is curbed by legislation that grows ever more stringent as time passes. No denial of history has ever been so successful".

STOP PRESS: New Years Eve '97, Oslo. Max Resist and Sons of Norway played for guests from Norway, Germany, Sweden and Canada. The party was a huge success.

In the context of this tragedy, and due to their inflicting unrelieved persecution upon those attempting to set the record straight through free and open discourse, I see the successive post-war puppet governments of Germany and their minions as an especially contemptible category of subhuman sewer-dweller. I cannot even begin to imagine what judgment of history will, in time, represent just retribution against those who have betrayed and abused so consistently their own nation, their own people, in the service of viciously hostile alien interests. Their actions are a dreadful horror story unto themselves. My heart lies forever with the victims. My children and grandchildren shall know their story.

Thought for the Day: "On the June day in 1941 that marked the beginning of Hitler's assault on Russia, Churchill said with a smile, "If Hitler invaded hell, I would at least make a favourable reference to the Devil in the House of Commons." (James Bacque in "Crimes and Mercies," Little, Brown and Company, 1997).

THE BLACK BOOK OF COMMUNISM

A new book claims that the victims of communism this century number between 85 and 100 million. But, even before their 848-page ``Black Book of Communism" was published, the 11 experts split up in bitter dispute over their gruesome findings.

Reuters said: "Were Stalin's purges, Pol Pot's genocide and the millions of other deaths under the hammer and sickle central to the communist system? Were they crimes against humanity on the same par as Nazi atrocities?

"The 11 historians, many of them Maoists, Trotskyites or communists in their rebellious younger years, examined the history of the former Soviet Union, China, Vietnam, Eastern Europe and non-governing communist movements to produce their detailed estimates of victims. Reviewers hailed the ``Black Book" as a first global study of the victims of one of the two totalitarianisms that have marked the 20th century. "

It seems that some of the researchers behind the book are upset that the book makes the communists look like criminals or mass murderers "like the nazis". This is incredible. If National Socialism, Fascism, Peronism, Distributism, Social Credit, the Falange or any other group/ideology linked with 'Nationalism' killed anything like 100 million it would be on the news every night - and bear in mind this book doesn't cover events like the French Revolution that happened last century.

The book estimates communists claimed 65 million lives in China, 20 million in the former Soviet Union, two million in Cambodia and North Korea each, 1.7 million in Africa, one million in Vietnam and Eastern Europe respectively and 150,000 in Latin America.

Reuters continues: ``The facts are stubborn and they show the communist regimes committed crimes against about 100 million people, against about 25 million for the Nazis," Courtois wrote in the disputed preface. (25 million! First six million - now this! -Ed)

"Werth, whose detailed descriptions of Lenin's terror regime were rated by reviewers as some of the best parts of the book, said there was still a qualitative difference between Nazism and communism" Yes, about 100 million.

Again we see that whereas it fits the Zionist agenda to bleat on about the six million without any serious evidence, 100 million dead people can be ignored because they aren't "chosen". Surely that's racism! I can't imagine Hollywood making a modern epic about the evil Soviet Union and the patriotic White Russians who fought the nasty Jewish top heavy Bolsheviks, or the Crusade fought by so many Europeans to destroy Bolshevism...

PARTY POLITICS = SELL OUT AND BETRAYAL

CINEMA

DEVIL's ADVOCATE starring Al Pacino as Ol' Scratch, cannot be fully understood unless one grasps the "Revelation of the Method" principle outlined in the book, "Secret Societies and Psychological Warfare." by M. Hoffman II. For N.Y. Senator (and Jewish puppet) Alphonse D'Amato to play himself and be filmed in a serious drama (not comedy), as he attends a sleazy party hosted by Satan himself, is an important feature of psychological warfare. "They" are openly announcing who they are and to whom they owe their positions, on the supposition they "we the people" will do nothing about it, thereby enhancing the power of the revelators over us. Another interesting part of the film concerns Satan's statement about lawyers--that they are the devil's chief agents in the world.

SEVEN YEARS IN TIBET stars Brad Pitt as Heinrich Harrer, the German SS mountaineer and Olympian who scaled the Himalayas and trekked to the forbidden city of Lhasa in mystic Tibet (with his equally intrepid companion Peter Aufschnaiter), after escaping a British concentration camp in India. Once in Lhasa, Pitt is befriended by the "god-king" Dalai Lama, then a precocious boy of 12. This is the first "good German" film to screen in many years, though it is marred by a couple of slight tips of the hat to political correctness. Harrer's book, by the same name, now reprinted sans any "correctness," is recommended.

MUSIC

TWIGHLIGHT OF THE GODS by Thunderbolt. ✦ This band are a concoction of Razors Edge and Avalon, the first highly accomplished - the latter a relative newcomer. As such I wasn't sure what to expect, but I wasn't to be disappointed. The first song - As a Warrior (I Salute You) is a belter, obviously dedicated to Ian Stuart and the CD takes off from there. Some of the songs are better than others, but the overall quality and sound of 'Thunderbolt' is top class. A little too much of the "Gods n Warriors drinking mead from hornéd helmets at Ragnarok" type stuff for my pallet, but a good CD with clear lyrics, good guitarwork etc. ☺☺☺☺½

A WEEK IN VALHALLA by Pheonix. ✦ Well, we leave one 'Viking retro' CD for another that's made up of personnel from two bands - this time Viking (see FC 14/15) and Nibelungen. This CD starts off with an intro about The Order followed by a balled about its imprisoned members. Most of the songs are in English, with just one in French and one in Swedish. The only thing that lets a few songs down is the fact that you can tell that English is a second language for the singer, (but hey - my French is limited to "Doux beers silvoor plate") and it notices more in some songs than others. All in all, a good mix of ballads and guitary Oi. ☺☺☺☺

THE NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS by Carl Klang. ✦ This superb album is now available on CD. See FC #16 for the review.

BRUCIA IL VASCELLO by Block 11. Italian Nationalist Oi. They manage to mix some heavy stuff with acoustic. It's good, honest, toe-tapping stuff on this 4 song mini-CD. Available from: Trinacria Records CP 16, 95030, Gravina di Catania, Italy. ☺☺☺☺

All CDs marked '✦' above are available from FC for £11 plus p&p. Ratings: buy the last few FCs and you'll know - tight wad!

FAITH, FOLK AND FAMILY

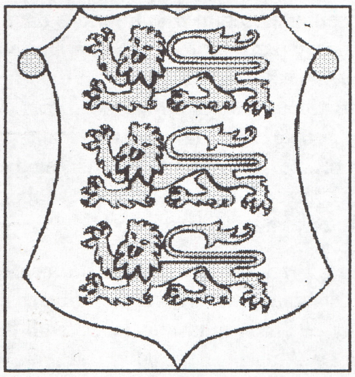
THIS IS THE new, red hot CD from those 'old timers' of skinhead RAC music - The Ovaltinees! 14 tracks shine out on this CD and you won't be sorry you bought it! Heavy - but with an 80's Oi edge to it, this is going to be a best seller!

Get yours NOW! Just £11 plus postage from Final Conflict, BCM 6358, London, WC1N 3XX, England.

THE OVALTINEES

GUERILLAS AGAINST THE SOVIET BEAST!

The "Forest Brethren" were a scarcely known anti-imperialist guerrilla movement against the Soviet yoke in the middle of Europe. A notable historian testifies to the origins and development of the guerrilla movement :



The Pro-Independence Guerrilla Movement in Estonia (1944-1955)

A striking feature of the post-war Stalinist era in Estonia was the protracted existence of an anti-Soviet guerrilla movement. This phenomenon began to emerge with the rapid Nazi retreat, which stranded thousands of Estonian soldiers who had been drafted into the German army in Estonia. Although some of these men still managed to leave Estonia, many disappeared into the woods and became "Forest Brethren" (METSAVENNAD, the popular Estonian term for the guerrillas). Their numbers were supplemented in the fall of 1944 by other German army veterans and members of the Home Guard seeking to avoid the arrest by Soviet security forces. The Soviet authorities carried out two mobilisations in the fall of 1944 and spring of 1945, and this action prompted still others to join the guerrillas or go underground. In addition, those seeking revenge against the Soviet regime for the mass deportations associated with collectivisation in March 1949 formed a final source of replenishment for the guerrillas.

Documentation on the guerrilla movement remains sparse, but reports by eyewitnesses permit an overall assessment. The organisation of the Forest Brethren varied, ranging from relatively large military units to individuals operating alone. Arms and ammunition abandoned by the retreating Germans outfitted the Estonian guerrillas in the early post-war years, and subsequent Soviet military supplies became available as the spoils of battle. Food and other basic necessities, along with strategic information, came from the surrounding local population. Regionally, the guerrillas were strongest in Virumaa, Paärnu and Verumaa, among the most swampy and thickly wooded areas of Estonia.

The size of guerrilla forces is difficult to determine, but one estimate suggests that there were about 5,000 Forest Brethren in 1944-46 with 80 percent located in the three above-mentioned districts. In some localities in the early post-war years the guerrillas had effective military control. The high point of guerrilla strength probably came in 1946-1948, when they were capable of fighting substantial military engagements with Soviet forces. Gradually, however, casualties and psychological attrition thinned their ranks. By the early 1950s, despite new blood as a result of the collectivisation drive, guerrilla strength had begun to ebb. A post-Stalin amnesty, carried out as promised in 1955, virtually ended the movement.

TALLINN
Estonia

The goals of Forest Brethren must be seen in the context of an expected postwar restoration of Estonian independence through the good offices of the Western Allies. Thus, although the guerrillas realised that they had no hope of bringing down the Soviet regime, they intended to hold out until international pressure (or perhaps a new war) forced the Soviets to withdraw from Estonia. In addition to guarding themselves, the guerrillas sought to protect the local population from acts of violence. By the time of mass collectivisation in 1949, the dream of restored independence had vanished, and the major guerrilla motivation became revenge against the Soviet regime. For those slated for deportation, joining the Forest Brethren was the only other choice...

PASS ON YOUR FINAL CONFLICT TO SOMEONE WHEN YOU'VE FINISHED WITH IT

BLOOD & HONOUR - DIVISION IN THE RANKS?

UNTIL QUITE recently the Blood and Honour story wasn't a nice tale. It certainly didn't inspire many newcomers to 'Nationalism'. There was back-stabbing, bickering and worse. It culminated with a young man - Chris Castle - being stabbed in what boils down to a dispute between two factions over money.

There was a group of bands who had left Blood and Honour prior to this because of all the rumours and nonsense going on. The main bands who left, at various stages, were English Rose, Squadron and Celtic Warrior. They were at odds with those who were running Blood and Honour. It seemed they were more interested in attacking other Nationalists than attacking Reds.

FINAL CONFLICT

FC stayed out of the whole, messy affair. We are a positive mag. Let those who want to bicker and bully go their own way. We will be friendly to those who are honest and trustworthy.

Since the terrible murder of Chris Castle, Blood and Honour magazine has come under the control of a new editor who says they want to forget all the old nonsense. The old editors, implicated in the fatal stabbing, no longer run B&H.

Some in the Celtic Warrior etc. ('independent') set up are now working loosely with Blood and Honour. Others won't.

Basically, there is still a division between the new B&H and the independent bands, but they've agreed to co-operate by holding concerts on different dates. Indeed, Avalon band (who are with B&H) recently helped out the Aryan Fest organised by English Rose etc. after the police pulled out all the stops to halt it.

FC has said that since we stayed clear of the old arguments and seeing as how there are people in 'new' Blood and Honour who are friendly to us and because we have good relations with English Rose and Celtic Warrior, amongst others, we will co-operate and remain friendly with both sides.

This is an opportunity for Blood and Honour - and the Nationalist music scene in Britain as a whole - to clean up its act. We'll keep an eye on things...

News: Despite rumours, English Rose are not 'calling it a day'...

MORE TOP TIPS...

1. Keep a reversible picture in your living room. On one side have your favourite personality (from Saddam Hussein through to Ranting Ron) - on the other a harmless landscape print. One will be for friends and family - one for visiting council officials, Royalty and Jehovah Witnesses

2. Buy a load of 'pac-a-macs' from a friendly charity shop (not communist Oxfam) and take them out in a carrier bag when it rains. Pin St. George Cross badges on them, then proceed to hand them out to bedraggled indigenous people. This will win over many people to the National Revolution.

3. Always take a note pad and pencil on Nationalist camps. Then make a note of all clichéd remarks ("This is what we're fighting for" etc.) for use in a future amusing book in post Revolutionary Europe.

The John Wayne of FC.

I should like to apologise for my absence from the back cover of the last issue of FC. There is no truth in the rumour that I was hiding in a cupboard whilst the collection was being taken and fell asleep. Also, well done to those of you who spotted our deliberate mistake. The Lamont-Rothschild's quote was of course said by Jeremy Paxman. A T-Shirt to Splodger Perkins of Hull for noticing first.

POOFS TARGET THE YOUNG - AND THE POLITICIANS FALL INTO LINE

Further to my feature last issue on Basingstoke Borough Council's setting up of a poof line called 'Freedom Youth'. It appears that whilst dishing out money to these scum bags, they closed down a 'normal' youth club' for "lack of money"... Hmmm. Obviously no hidden agenda there.

Meanwhile in Buckinghamshire, Paul Thompson, who works for South Buckinghamshire NHS Trust is co-ordinating 'Icebreakers' - an "advice group" for homosexual teenagers. This is funded by Buckinghamshire Health Authority.

What is clear is that around the country there is a blatant effort to 'recruit' children to the ranks of 'poofdom'. This is especially frightening when one considers that leading faggots are saying that paedophilia can be acceptable (see FC issue 16, page 3; or for a more detailed analysis, The Voice of St. George issue 8, page 2).

THE SYSTEM

What is further becoming clear is that the whole system is falling into line behind the nutter poofs' demands. The whole party system is pro-homosexual. Euro "human rights" laws are pro-homosexual. The whole 'entertainment' business from Hollywood through to Childrens' TV is pro-homosexual.

We have a situation where the whole system stands against the people - and not just the people of England, but the people of the UK, Europe, America etc.

The letter on the right appeared in the Irish 'Sunday Life'. If our politicians and Churchmen followed the peoples' wishes, and the laws of God and nature - this is the sort of thing they'd be saying.

HANG 'EM ALL!

Perverted society should horrify us

Last week's Lynda Gilby page

LYNDA GILBY argues a case for the age of homosexual consent to be lowered from 18 years to 16 years, comparing such sordid perversion to the natural love between a man and a woman and complaining of the "inequality" of the situation.

It may no longer be politically correct to say it, but the greater number of people are rightfully horrified at a society which permits all manner of degeneracy and perversion under the guise of an alternative lifestyle.

Bizzare

The fair play ethos espoused by liberal columnists may indeed be their genuine opinion.

However, the silent majority fail to express opinions which are contrary to the bizarre world of political correctness.

This is unfortunate as it grants the illusion to such columnists, and to the degenerates engaged in all manner of perversion, that what they're doing is OK.

The presence of AIDS, the break-up of the family, (and by extension society) along with the open promotion of pornography are not factors worthy of condemnation in an increasingly immoral and degenerate era.

Liberalism is, like the permissive society, striking at the very heart of the nation.

One only has to examine the decline and ultimate collapse of ancient Greece through what was coyly described as the 'vice of the Greeks' (homosexuality) to see where society is heading.

Examine, too, the scriptures for God's condemnation of sodomy, and the Lord's righteous destruction of the permissive society of Sodom and Gommorah.

Look, too, to Lev. 18:22, 20:13 — words 2000 years old and of eternal significance unlike Lynda Gilby's column in Sunday Life which became Monday's chip wrappers!
